INVITATION

Dear Colleagues,

The 25th International SPACC (The Society of Pure and Applied Coordination Chemistry) Symposium will be held at University of the Ryukyus, from November 23 to November 25, 2018. The International Advisory and Organizing Committee cordially invite you to attend the Symposium and participate in its scientific and social programs. The main theme of the Symposium will be “Functional complexes leading fusion of multiple scientific fields” The Symposium will focus on the chemistry of novel and useful application of coordination chemistry that can open the novel area, afford novel materials, and find insight of the organic, inorganic, and biological system for the new sustainable feature.

As with previous SPACC Symposia, it is intended that this Symposium will provide a platform for young scientists to exchange scientific information among themselves and with the selected leading scientists. This challenging symposium began in Tokyo 25 years ago by the SPACC fellow Prof. Yano, and has being held annually and consecutively in the world. It is our great pleasure to hold this 25th Symposium in Okinawa.

Presentations will consist of three categories, several invited lectures, oral presentations, and poster presentations. Prizes will be awarded for the best presentations, especially for students. The International Advisory and Organizing Committee hope all registrants will present a paper, but acceptance of papers will be at the discretion of the Committee. The official language of the symposium will be English.

In the following pages, you will find details concerning the Symposium. We look forward to meeting you in Okinawa, Japan.
