INVITATION

Dear Colleagues,

The 21st International SPACC (The Society of Pure and Applied Coordination Chemistry) Symposium will be held at Kogakuin University (Tokyo Urban Tech), from October 31 to November 3, 2014. The International Advisory and Organizing Committee cordially invite you to attend the Symposium and participate in its scientific and social programs. The main theme of the Symposium will be “New frontiers in Advanced Engineering – Innovative Applications of Coordination Compounds and Their Related Sciences”. The Symposium will focus on the innovative applications of coordination compounds to interdisciplinary fields, including chemistry, biology, materials science, and applied physics.

As with previous SPACC Symposia, it is intended that this Symposium will provide a platform for young scientists to exchange scientific information among themselves and with the selected leading scientists. This challenging symposium began in Tokyo just 20 years ago by the SPACC fellow Prof. Yano, and has been held annually and consecutively in the world. It is our great pleasure to hold this 21st Symposium in the first venue.

Presentations will consist of three categories, several invited lectures, oral presentations, and poster presentations. Prizes will be awarded for the best presentations, especially for students. The International Advisory and Organizing Committee hope all registrants will present a paper, but acceptance of papers will be at the discretion of the Committee. The official language of the symposium will be English.

In the following pages, you will find details concerning the Symposium. We look forward to meeting you in the best season of Tokyo, Japan!
